The government today announced it will relax planning legislation to make it easier to construct large batteries to store renewable energy from solar and wind farms across the UK.

I set off in an unleaded Toyota Corolla with a handful of physical maps on the spare seat, for what was a challenging journey. I can only marvel at how far we have come since then. My more recent trips to Europe have all been done in electric cars, and with an excellent charging infrastructure on the continent and satellite navigation with charging included, it is as simple as it can be. And in no small part that's down to companies like the one featured in this insight
