Forklift Truck Batteries For Sale

If you're not sure what type of battery you need, you can check the identification label or sticker on the side of the existing battery. If this isn't possible, give us a call and we'll do our best to help.

Once we've identified the battery you require, we will attend your site and remove the old cells from the tank. We will then clean the tank and rebuild the battery using brand new cells, new bolts, connectors and packing. We will also assemble a new harness.

All prices you'll receive from us are for carrying out work plus VAT, which includes all labour and delivery charges. We usually have plenty of brand new forklift batteries in stock so can complete the job on a date that is convenient for you. All new forklift batteries from PHL come with a 5 year warranty.

This will depend on the type of forklift that you have. Certain types of batteries have different properties, for example, lithium-ion batteries are more expensive but weigh less and offer longer run times. Lead-acid batteries on the other hand are a more cost-effective solution that is more generally suitable for most applications.

To help maintain the equipment and ensure it stays in good condition, it's recommended that you check the forklift battery once a month. It's also good practice to perform checks before and after each use. If you require any help in knowing what to look for during the checks, please contact our team - they would be happy to help.

Ensure your forklift battery is stored in a clean, well-ventilated area that is dry and away from any sources of moisture or heat. It's also important that they are stored on a flat surface to prevent movement. Checking regularly for corrosion or damage is also essential and making sure they do not run flat.

Cost will differ depending on the size and type of battery. Large lithium-ion forklift batteries will be more expensive when compared to smaller lead-acid batteries. However, for peace of mind, all of our new forklift batteries come with a five-year warranty.
