Kenya just got a new EV competitor. On Wednesday, BYD launched three of its top-selling EVs, the Dolphin, Seal, and Atto 3, in Kenya. The electric vehicles will be sold by local dealer Loxea, which sells Toyota and other gas-powered models. BYD's new partnership is another significant milestone as it takes on new markets.

BYD's Atto 3 electric SUV stole the show. "BYD's presence in Kenya signifies our commitment to supporting the country and green transition and modernizing the transportation landscape," Loxea Kenya MD Jennifer Kinyoe said at the event.

Although it's best known for low-cost EVs like the Seagull, which starts at under $10,000 in China, BYD is quickly expanding with new pickup trucks, luxury models, and electric supercars hitting the market.

As it expands the brand globally, BYD's new 7,000-car carrier is about to hit the seas. It will be the second of seven to join its fleet as China's EV leader goes global. After a record-breaking August, BYD has now sold over 1 million EVs this year.
