Food Waste Management is a pressing concern, especially given the country's significant production of commercial food waste. At Greenzone, we understand that while reducing Food Waste is a top priority, there are situations where it's not always possible to eliminate it entirely. That's why we're here to help you contribute to a greener future by ensuring responsible food waste collections.

At Greenzone, we've built a network of national and local partners dedicated to diverting your food waste away from landfill sites. We utilise eco-friendly methods for Food Waste Recovery including:

Composting: Your food waste is transformed into valuable soil nutrients, supporting sustainable agriculture and reducing the need for chemical fertilizers. This is an essential aspect of food waste Recycling.

Anaerobic Digestion: Microorganisms break down food waste to produce biogas, a renewable source of energy. This biogas can be used to generate electricity, produce organic fertilizers, create slurry for agricultural use, or even serve as animal feed.

Scheduled Collection: Our collection schedules are tailored to your requirements and the nature of your waste, ensuring minimal disruption to your operations, a crucial aspect of food recycling companies.
