The Central Region is a world full of unique places and amazing things to do. Central Region, whose capital is Cape Coast, is a great place to visit for so many different reasons that it can be hard to choose. Without a doubt, Ghana's Central Region is the most historically important place to visit, as it is where 80% of tourists go. People don't call this place the "heartbeat of Ghana tourism" for nothing. There are a lot of interesting places to see in the Central area that you might want to visit while you're there.

There are lots of interesting things to do and see in this part of the world. Tourists will be able to see more of Ghana's cultures, which are usually kept secret in other parts of the country. As shown by Ghana's castles and forts, the Central Region is a great place to have fun and learn about the country's history.

In this piece, our blog will list the best places for tourists to visit in Ghana's Central region. From a historic spot to a protected forest. What's holding you back? Start making plans for your trip by scrolling down.

Castle of Cape CoastThe Portuguese picked Cape Coast as the first place to live in Africa, and in 1555, they built a trade lodge there. The building that is now called Cape Coast Castle was built by Swedes led by Krusenstjerna. Around 1653, the Swedish Africa Company built a wooden fort there. It used to be a center for the trade of wood and gold, and later it was a stop on the Trans-Atlantic slave trade.

After stopping for days or weeks in Assin Manso river park, slaves will walk over 40 miles to Cape Coast Castle while still chained and shackled. This is the last time they will see their home country. This will be the last thing they see before leaving their home country.

Places of interest in the centerElmina CastleThe Portuguese built Elmina Castle in 1482 as Castelo do Sao de Mina (St. George of Mina Castle), which is also called Castelo de Mina. In Cape Coast, Central Region, the castle is a famous place for tourists to visit. History tells us that Elmina and Elmina Castle are the oldest European houses south of the Sahara. They were the first business posts to be set up on the Gulf of Guinea.

In the 1990s, the government of Ghana did a lot of work to fix up the castle. Still, work is being done on the castle. Today, tourism and fishing are the most important parts of Elmina's income. Elmina Castle is now a state museum in Ghana. In 1979, it was added to the list of UNESCO World Heritage Sites.

The Assin Manso Slave River
The Assin Manso Slave River
Even though it might make you cry, this place is a must-see for anyone who wants to learn more about the slave past of African Americans. On the road from Cape Coast to Kumasi, Assin Manso is 40 kilometers away. It is one of the most important places in Ghana's history. During the well-known trans-Atlantic slave trade, Assin Manso Slave River Park was one of the biggest places where slaves were bought and sold.

Places of interest in the center
Komenda Cave
Komenda Cave is west of the town of Komenda and close to the beach. The Cave stands out from the other natural shapes that the sea has cut into the sandstone.

Kakum National Park
Kakum National Park
It is one of only three places in Africa with a 350-meter (1,150-foot) canopy walkway that joins seven treetops and leads to the jungle. This park was built and is 375 square kilometers (145 square miles) big. In 1931, it was made into a reserve forest. In 1992, it was turned into a tourist area. The park is one of the best places for tourists to visit in the Central area.

Shrines in Posuban
Shrines in Posuban
These buildings are easy to spot because of their bright colors, which have meanings in mythology. They were owned by the Asafo company and were near Elmina Castle. People who used to be in the military have changed into calm people who are known for their ceremonial self-service mindset. Each of the Asafos Shrines stands for one of the Asafos.
