

Somaliland energy conservation

Somaliland energy conservation

A strategy to protect the biodiversity of these two sites was established, adhering to the principle of community-centered conservancy. This approach empowers residents to play a significant role in the management and protection of their environment, under the guidance of the MoECC.

In-depth discussions during the meetings and workshops explored conservation actions and the core principles of community-centered conservancy governance. These principles are designed to achieve desirable, long-term conservation outcomes that are both ecologically and socially equitable. The dialogue encompassed a multilevel governance structure, involving policymakers from the MoECC, regional, district, and village levels. Community groups engaged in discussions and meetings across villages and valleys to share their feedback and past experiences.

Participants recognized the significance of the Community Centered Conservancy (C3) as an innovative, sustainable conservation and development program. They expressed strong commitment and appreciation for C3's ability to sustain natural resources and provide equal benefits to all inhabitants, noting the program's positive impact on wildlife and ecological improvement.

A debriefing session with the Somaliland Conservation Association in Hargeisa, which includes INGOs, local NGOs, and UN members, highlighted the enthusiasm for immediate collaboration among all stakeholders.

This project is generously funded by a grant from Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs (DEFRA), Rainforest Trust and International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN).

CCF is an international non-profit organization with fundraising operations located in: Australia, Canada, Italy, United Kingdom, and United States, working in cooperation with staff and partners around the world.

Photography on our website is provided by generous supporters like Suzi Eszterhas, John and Angela Scott, Jennifer Leigh Warner, Craig Taylor, Vicky Morey, Andrew Harrington, Bobby Bradley, and many others.

Somaliland energy conservation

Contact us for free full report

Web: <https://www.sumthingtasty.co.za/contact-us/>

Email: energystorage2000@gmail.com

WhatsApp: 8613816583346

